Medicaid

Medicaid is a state-run program based on family income that helps people who need health care services. Medicaid pays for services like hospital care, lab work, X-rays, transportation, family planning, pediatric care, and early health screenings for your child. A person can have BOTH Medicare and Medicaid. And your child may be eligible for Medicaid, even if you aren't.

Check with your state Medicaid office to learn about the specific services in your state.

Medicare

Medicare is a Federal program that helps care for the elderly and disabled. Medicare pays for things like hospital care, diabetes screenings, mammograms, cancer screenings, help with quitting smoking, and much more. Medicare provides the shots, tests, and services you need to get healthy—and stay healthy.

Programs for Families and Children

The Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) offers low-cost health insurance for families and children to help you and your family get the health care services you need. CHIP covers things like shots, well-baby visits, hospital, and emergency care. Your state may have its own name for CHIP, like KidsCare in Arizona.
