CMS

“Working at CMS allows me to impact American Indian and Alaska Native healthcare through outreach and education about our programs and development of policies affecting our tribal communities. By working with my colleagues at CMS on tribal issues, we are able to improve greater access to high quality healthcare for tribal populations”

WHO WE ARE

The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) is a federal government agency within the Department of Health and Human Services. We're the largest purchaser of health care in the world, responsible for Medicare, Medicaid, the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) and the federal Health Insurance Exchanges. With the second largest budget in the federal government, CMS touches the lives of nearly 145 million people, including senior citizens, families, people with limited incomes, and people with disabilities.

CMS works in partnership with the entire health care community and provides leadership in the broader health care marketplace. Our effectiveness depends on the capable, dedicated, professional staff who support our objectives.

Our work enhances the lives of millions of Americans. At CMS, whatever your strength or passion, you'll find opportunities to make a difference.

Our Offices

CMS' headquarters is located just outside Baltimore in Woodlawn, Maryland. CMS also maintains offices in Washington, DC and Bethesda, MD and 10 regional offices in cities across the country (Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Kansas City, Denver, San Francisco, and Seattle).

Division of Tribal Affairs

The Division of Tribal Affairs serves as the point of contact for Indian health issues at CMS and works in collaboration with CMS Native American Contacts (NACs) to provide technical assistance on CMS programs for American Indian and Alaska Native (AIAN) beneficiaries and Indian Health Service, tribal and urban Indian health providers. For more information visit: go.cms.gov/AIAN

Our Impact

We empower patients and their doctors to work together to make the best health care decisions; we give patients meaningful information about quality and costs, so they may be well-informed health care consumers; and we support innovative improvements to health care quality, accessibility, and affordability. A career with CMS offers you opportunities to get involved with these important national health care issues and be part of a dynamic, fast-paced, and highly visible organization. You can play a vital role in ensuring that people have access to high-quality, affordable health care. At CMS, you have the chance to make a real impact.
